

Work, learn, teach or train overseas

Opportunities for learners, lecturers and teachers

College Development Network (CDN) is working with the European Commission in the UK to encourage and support colleges and schools in Scotland to get involved in the Erasmus+ programme.

We will be looking at opportunities for learners and staff in three key areas:

- Vocational training for students
- Teaching and training for teachers and lecturers
- Working abroad.

CDN will do that by:

- Setting up an Interest Group that will act as an Ambassador Programme
- Organising regional information sessions and webinars
- Holding a national conference in Glasgow in September 2017.

The CDN International Development Network is supported by the British Council, it acts as a forum for professional updates and sharing information and advice across the college sector. The Network also encourages and supports collaborative bids and projects.

Our Erasmus+ Interest Group and Ambassador Programme will work closely with the International Development Network, which will be able to feed in relevant information and experiences.

Throughout 2017 we will be running regional workshops in colleges across Scotland, to highlight the benefits offered by an Erasmus+ experience and to provide information on what's involved when applying.

Get involved

If you or your students would like to contribute to this exciting project, for example by helping us to create resources, case studies, write blogs or by joining the Ambassador Group, please contact barbara.slater@cdn.ac.uk

Further details about these regional workshops and the national conference in September 2017 will be available on a dedicated page of the CDN website:
